

Abstract

A hollow body through which a fluid passes that comprises at least one of the following materials:

- a material which itself has an antimicrobial effect,
- a material in which an additive with biocidal effect is distributed, or
- a material onto at least one surface of which a material has a biocidal effect is placed.